

ATHENS COUPLE KILLED IN CRASH

FLYERS LAND SAFELY AT BERMUDA

GOAL REACHED AFTER LONG NIGHT SPENT ON SEA

Gas Supply Barely Enough To Make
Island Safely

ANOON, Bermuda, April 2.—The New York-to-Bermuda plane "Pilot," commanded by Lewis A. Yancey, landed here safely at 10:30 o'clock today (9:30 a. m. E. S. T.).

The plane had come in from its place of forced landing about sixty miles northwest of Bermuda, where it was obliged to come down last night because of darkness.

Captain Yancey and his fellow flyers had barely sufficient gasoline to make the harbor here, and considered themselves fortunate to make a safe landing.

First sight of the pontoon-equipped plane in the sky, off the local harbor brought a wave of relief to the citizenry of Hamilton which had been on the quiver since early yesterday afternoon. Knowledge that they had hopped off from their overnight "camp" on the smooth surface of the Atlantic at 5:30 o'clock (4:30 Eastern standard time), caused some apprehension for their safety when they failed to arrive here within an hour. It was feared that they might have overshot the island.

SEVEN BANDITS STEAL $25,000

Rob Loan Firm Of Dues
Of 2,000 Members

PHILADELPHIA, April 2.—The offices of the Kazimierz Wielki Building and Loan Association were short $25,000 today due to the daring holdup of the association of officials last night by seven armed bandits just after 2,000 members had paid their dues.

Thirteen men and a woman were in the offices of the association when the bandit gang, armed with sawed-off shotguns and revolvers, invaded the place.

Five of the seven intruders stepped to a table where the money had been placed in bags ready to be taken to a bank a block away.

Two of the bandits kept the patrons covered while the five scooped up the money and fled to the street.

The bandits made their escape in a blue sedan.

CONVICTED BUT REFUSES TO RESIGN

CANTON, O., April 2.—Despite the appointment of his successor, Charles A. Fromm today continued to refuse to resign his post on the board of county commissioners. As a result Stark County has four commissioners instead of the usual three for the first time in its history.

Fromm is under sentence of eighteen months to ten years in Ohio State Penitentiary, following his conviction on charges of soliciting a $400 bribe from a Cleveland salesman. He has steadfastly refused to resign. Bert L. Payne was appointed to succeed Fromm on the board of commissioners yesterday.

The board was scheduled to meet today to take up work which has been delayed for three months pending Fromm's removal and the appointment of his successor. Fromm declared today that he will attend the meeting.

JEALOUS WIFE KILLS WOMAN RIVAL

PINEVILLE, Ky., April 2.—"She took my man!" Those words of Mrs. Ruth Robinson, 35-year-old wife, who shot and killed Mrs. Sophia Massingale in the street of this little mining town yesterday, today supplied a motive for the shooting.

After the shooting, the wife went to a nearby store, where she threw her revolver behind a counter and told the proprietor to call the sheriff. After the latter arrived, the young wife told him simply:

"She took my man."

GIRL IS MISSING

BUYRUS, O., April 2.—A concentrated search had been started by authorities here today for Edith Ferrall, 15-year-old high school girl, who, according to her parents, has been missing from her home since Saturday evening. The first official report of the girl's disappearance was made late yesterday.

BEGIN "NOSE COUNT"

Thousands Of Uncle Sam's Census Takers Start
Work Wednesday Morning.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—America lined up today for the decennial "nose count."

The 1930 census was commenced by thousands of supervisors and enumerators in every city, town, hamlet, rural and industrial district. By the end of the month the government will have an accurate picture of the population, wealth, production capacity and other facts concerning Uncle Sam's gigantic plant and personnel.

Especially important was attached to the census of unemployment and distribution. This will be the first unemployment survey since 1910, when the results were not made public. Officials pointed out that "while our ignorance of the extent of unemployment is so great, planning for its control is impossible."

Census officials, pointing out that information given by individuals regarding their own employment is strictly confidential, urged that questions be answered freely and carefully, so an exact picture of the situation may be obtained.

"It will then be possible to consider plans for the control of the evil of unemployment," the census bureau said.

The distribution census is being taken for the first time.

Producers generally have eliminated the major portion of waste in manufacture, but the distribution of commodities has been regarded as highly wasteful and one of the few remaining blots on the American commercial and industrial systems.

In order to get at the facts of distribution every business house in United States will be visited—every manufacturer, farmer, mine operator, and producer, as well as the common carriers.

The prison census is of extraordinary interest at this time because of the rapid increase of crime since the prohibition statutes have been written on the law books. The 1930 census will be the first since nationwide prohibition has been in force for a sufficient length of time to determine its effect. The prison survey will

ONE MAN DEAD, TWO WOUNDED, IN GUN BATTLE

CLEVELAND, April 2.—Two men, described by police as shakedown racketeers, were in a hospital here today seriously wounded and another man was dead as a result of a gun battle last night in an alleged speakeasy.

John Vitale, 35, was fatally wounded while shooting it out with the reputed shakedown artists, both of whom he shot before falling dead from their gunfire.

The wounded men are Howard Abbot, 29, and Frank Peskter, 21. Abbot is said to have admitted the shooting and to have confessed that he and his companion were engaged in shakedown racketeering, especially among bootleg joints. They preyed on speakeasies, Abbot said, because they were sure bootleggers would not squeal.

The two men are also said to have been identified in connection with the shooting of Peter Bukovec, 50, who was wounded by two robbers yesterday during a holdup.

Abbot, according to hospital attaches, was not expected to live.

COUNTERFEITERS HAVE PLEADED GUILTY

CLEVELAND, April 2.—Three men were being held for the federal grand jury under $2,000 bond each today following their pleas of guilty yesterday before U. S. Commissioner H. K. Cochrane to charges of possessing counterfeit coins and molds.

The men are Harry Schutte, 40, of Akron, and Albert Taylor, 24, and Harvey D. Webb, 23, both of Cuyahoga Falls. They were arrested by Akron detectives and U. S. Secret Service agents. The agents reported they seized $35 in counterfeit half-dollars, dimes and nickels along with molds for making the coins.

CHILD INJURED

COLUMBUS, O., April 2.—Marcus W. Drilott, 12, is in a serious condition today in White Cross Hospital as the result of injuries which he sustained when he was struck by an automobile late yesterday afternoon. His windpipe was severed when he was struck a glancing blow by one of the door handles of the car. Doctors say he has a chance of recovery.

be of great value to the president's crime commission.

Other surveys will include the census of agriculture, manufacturers, mines and quarries, and the ordinary population enumeration. Latest estimates fixed the population at over 120,500,000, with an annual increase of about 1,500,000 from the excess of births over deaths, and immigration.

Census supervisors have been directed to issue preliminary statements of the population of their districts as soon as the enumeration is completed. This will give commercial organizations and local governments an opportunity to suggest possible corrections. In the past protests have been made at the population figures issued by the census. Commercial organizations regard the growth of population as an important factor in obtaining new industries and in municipal advertisement.

Final population figures and the results of the special surveys, such as unemployment and distribution, will be issued from Washington.

INDIAN GIRL MAY PLEAD GUILTY TO LESSER CHARGE

Accused Slayer Still In Hospital

BUFFALO, N. Y., April 2.—While the greatest secrecy today surrounded the next move in the trial of Lila Jemerson, Indian girl accused of slaying the hammer-wielding Mrs. Clothilde Marchand, it was learned by International News Service here that she would plead guilty of murder in the second degree. Thus, she would automatically escape the possibility of death in the electric chair. Lila was in city hospital this morning, seriously ill, following her collapse in court yesterday when she became subjected to severe coughing which accentuated her tubercular condition. There was little prospect that the trial, scheduled to be resumed this forenoon, could proceed.

Although the lawyers themselves would not discuss the situation, it was learned from an unimpeachable source that District Attorney Guy B. Moore indicated to one of the attorneys for the defense that he would accept the lesser plea—that is, guilty of murder in the second degree. Lila is on trial for murder in the first degree. The defense attorney countered by suggesting she might plead guilty to manslaughter. The district attorney turned this suggestion down.

A week ago the district attorney would have agreed upon no compromise. But, in view of her collapse, the situation has changed, and much sympathy has gone out toward the girl and, in some way, the might conceivably be communicated to or sensed by the jury.

Second-degree murder is punishable by imprisonment from twenty years to life. Manslaughter is punishable by a term of twenty years, or less. If the state succeeded in convicting Lila of first-degree murder her punishment would be death in the electric chair.

The defense attorneys were dubious over the wisdom of entering a plea of guilty to murder in the second degree.

First of all the defense lawyers would consult with Lila in the hospital before any definite step was taken.

Court was to be called to order at 9:15 this morning. The trial cannot proceed without the defendant, and as her condition is serious Judge Thorne has indicated he will grant an adjournment until 2 o'clock in the afternoon as a play for time. Such an adjournment would enable Defense Counsel John V. Maloney to put the proposition of a guilty of second degree murder plea up to Lila.

As a possible obstacle of her agreeing to make such a plea was the fact that a long imprisonment would be tantamount to a death sentence to her. It has been stated during the trial that she has only a year to live, so serious is her tubercular condition. Then, too, there is the possibility that the jury might even acquit her.

The most stringent precautions were taken at the hospital to prevent information from leaking out regarding the condition of Lila. She was in a private room on the third floor, outside of which was stationed a state trooper. On the main floor, another trooper, pistol strapped on his thigh, maintained a watch on reporters.

Dr. Walter S. Goodale, superintendent of the hospital, refused to give out any information. Previously he had stated Lila's condition was "very serious" and that he doubted she would be able to appear in court today. She had been placed on the hospital's "danger list."

Return With Heroic Dead

(L. to r.) M. T. Slepnev, Russian aviator, being thanked by Adeline Eielson and Earl Borland, sister and father of Carl Ben Eielson, as he arrived on the S. S. Alaska with the bodies of Ben Eielson and Earl Borland. Slepnev was one of those who flew over the Arctic wastes in search of the plane which crashed with the two Northland heroes on their ill-fated rescue mission. Borland was buried in Seattle. Eielson's body was entombed in his home city of Hatton, N. D., and buried in the family plot there.

HUSTON TO REMAIN CHAIRMAN REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE UNTIL HE CAN "RETIRE WITH DIGNITY"

WASHINGTON, April 2.—After two weeks of hectic maneuvering on the part of Republican leaders and much conferring at the White House, Claudius H. Huston is still chairman of the Republican national committee and he will remain in that post, it was authoritatively reported today, until such time as he can "retire with dignity."

Appeals from party leaders to the president to take direct action for removal of the Republican chairman have come to naught. After some days of hesitation, during which it is understood Mr. Hoover was considering taking the advice of party chieftains, he has at last decided to keep hands off.

The president is said to take the position that if the party leaders want to behold Chairman Huston for his lobbying and other activities, it is up to them, not to him, to do it. The approaching campaign after all, it has been pointed out, means more to them than it does to the White House.

To this return of party leaders has been selected Huston for the chairmanship after the retirement of Dr. Hubert Work, and if he is to be removed the White House should do it. Huston, these leaders have urged, was not the committee's choice for the chairmanship. Mr. Hoover indicated he wanted the Tennessee appointed and the committee obligingly acquiesced.

The inner Republican row over whether Huston will go or stay has assumed large proportions in the past few days.

The approach of the campaign and the absolute necessity for a smooth-running national organization to collect funds for prosecution of a score of hard party fights in November is the spectre that is haunting Republican candidates of high and low degree. Preliminary efforts at collection of funds for party work has been retarded by the uncertainty over Huston's status. The treasury is not in a robust condition for campaign purposes.

SIGN NEW WAGE AGREEMENT

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 2.—A new wage and working contract for most of the Indiana coal fields, retaining the present $6.10 a day scale, and effective for one year, was signed here early today.

The contracting parties were representatives of the Indiana Coal Operators' Association and of District No. 11 of the United Mine Workers of America.

The signing of the new contract, which replaces the one that expired yesterday, averted the possibility of idleness at Indiana soft coal mines employing about 20,000 miners.

THINK BARRIER TO THREE-POWER NAVAL TREATY REMOVED

New Hope For Success Of Naval Conference

LONDON, April 2.—The naval conference appeared today to have found an avenue to success.

The Tokyo government's cabled acceptance of Anglo-American tonnage proposals gave impetus to the negotiations between other delegations and there were indications that the more serious problems of the conference were nearing solution.

Acceptance of those proposals by the Japanese makes certain accord between the three leading powers—Britain, Japan and the United States, and regardless of whether a five power pact is written a tripartite agreement is possible.

Yet the security requirements of France, the big obstacle to the five-power pact, may be satisfied through interpretations placed on article sixteen, of the league covenant and agreed upon in principle by England and France.

This interpretation, while meeting the needs of France, if it is accepted as they wish, to the Kellogg treaty terms, will not involve Britain in any further military commitments. The Italian leader, Dino Grandi, has signified the willingness of his country to accept such an accord.

Foreign Secretary Henderson was meeting Foreign Minister Briand of France today for further discussions on the manner in which an agreement based on Article 16 and the Kellogg pact may be written.

Italy has never receded from her demand for parity with France but it is thought that soon as Britain and France come to terms on their dual agreement, Italy will fall in line.

There was talk today that if the British and French reach full accord, the United States will be asked to participate in a five-power consultation pact, of the sort discussed last week.

It was made clear, in this regard, that America was not expected to make any guarantees of any kind.

Reijiro Wakatsuki, chief of the Japanese delegation, was to communicate the terms of Tokyo's reply to the compromise proposal to Secretary Stimson and Premier MacDonald at St. James Palace this afternoon.

Both American and British authorities today denied Tokyo newspaper reports that the British ambassador and American representatives in Tokyo had exerted pressure upon Japan to accept the compromise. It was admitted, however, that both pointed out to the Tokyo government the reasons why the United States and Britain hoped Japan would accept the proposal.

The British cabinet is considering the draft of a political formula giving France the Mediterranean security she desires. Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France is confident an agreement can be reached, but insists the Italians present their tonnage demands before French tonnage reductions are announced officially.

Heads of the delegations are to meet this afternoon to draw up the agenda for Friday's plenary session.

CLEWS MEAGER IN SEARCH FOR KILLER

PITTSBURGH, April 2.—With only meager clues left by careful killers to work upon, city and county detectives today centered their first efforts upon establishing the identity of Pittsburgh's second headless murder victim in the last seven years.

Two sections of an afternoon newspaper of last Monday, several soiled potato sacks and an ordinary produce barrel were the sole clues in the possession of police.

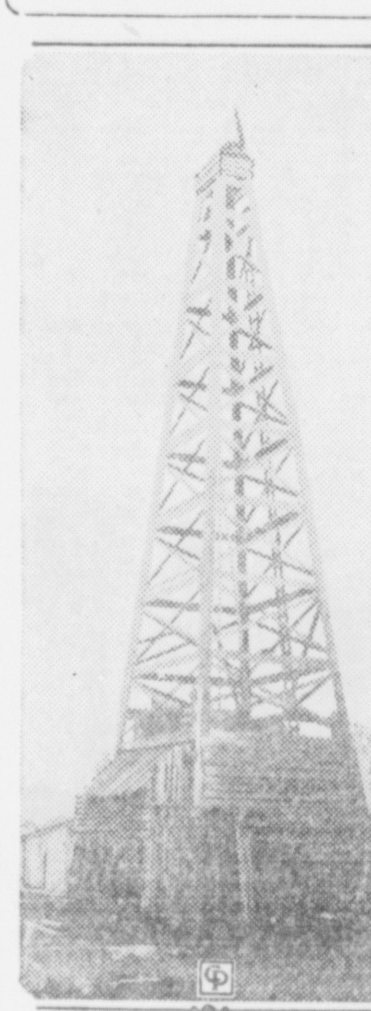

The decapitated body of the victim was found crammed tightly in the barrel last yesterday. The head was missing, strips of flesh had been slashed from his arms which were believed to have borne tattoo marks and the clothing also had been stripped from the body to hinder identification.

A detail of detectives was assigned today to search through the railroad produce yards near where the body was found. It was believed possible that the head of the victim might have been tossed into a freight car of a train pulling out of the city.

HORSEMAN INJURED

COLUMBUS, O., April 2.—When his sedan skidded from the wet, slippery pavement on the National Highway east of Reynoldsburg, Carl Drake, 53, Elyria, prominent race horse owner, suffered cuts about the face and arms. He was picked up by a passerby and was taken to Grant Hospital.

OHIO STRIKES OIL

Ohioans are wearing broad grins these days because the state has struck oil on its brick plant land at Roseville. The well above, just drilled, is producing ninety barrels per day, and there is room for ten wells without going inside the stockade. Very few dry holes have been found in the territory and the state is almost certain of royalties $100,000 annually from nearby after development is completed. Many 200 and 400-barrel wells have been struck within a mile of the state land.

MEASURES TAKEN TO GUARD AGAINST MORE RIOTING

Disorders Outgrowth Of Police Order

BOMBAY, April 2.—Throughout British India today the police were on the alert to prevent possible recurrences of yesterday's Calcutta riots, when six were killed and many were injured in a clash between police and cart drivers.

The dispute grew out of an order prohibiting the drivers from bringing their bullock-drawn trucks into the city streets during working hours of the day.

Some of those participating in the riots were reported to be followers of Mahatma Gandhi, the independence leader.

Gandhi arrived today at Surat fifteen miles from the coast where he and a faithful band of disciples from Ahmadabad are going with the avowed purpose of manufacturing salt in violation of the law.

The greatest reception tendered Gandhi since he started his march occurred at Surat, where 10,000 persons greeted him and his marchers, acclaiming his policies.

Ample police precautions have been taken from Surat to the coast to prevent disorders.

MOUGEY RESIGNS CONNECTION WITH HORST MURDER CASE

WOOSTER, O., April 2.—Little hope remains that the mystery of the disappearance of Melvin Horst, missing four-year-old Orrville boy, can be solved, even by the most skilled investigator.

This was the translation placed today on the announcement of Walter J. Mougey, former Wayne County prosecutor, that he has relinquished his connection with the investigation of the Horst case by resigning as special assistant to County Prosecutor Marion F. Graven.

"I could not continue under the present circumstances," Mougey said, declining to offer any further explanation of his resignation. Just what the "present circumstances" are that Mougey referred to was a matter of conjecture, but it is believed the investigator looks with despair on the solution of the disappearance mystery.

Mougey made the initial investigation into the Horst case when the boy vanished more than a year ago. At that time he was county prosecutor.

Coincidentally with the resignation of Mougey from the case, it was learned that Common Pleas Judge George A. Starn has been conducting a personal investigation into the mystery on information indicating that the Horst boy might still be alive. The information, however, the judge admitted, apparently has no foundation.

Judge Starn declined to reveal the source of his tip but declared that it did not come from Charles Hannah, who with Earl Conald is being held in the Wayne County jail under indictments charging child stealing and murder in connection with the disappearance of the Horst boy.

Judge Starn's investigation carried him to the farmhouse of Mrs. Melvin Ault, mother-in-law of Mrs. Raymond Horst, mother of the missing boy. The judge searched the entire house, but chose to give no explanation of his investigation.

H. B. NELSON AND WIFE LOSE LIVES IN CROSSING ACCIDENT

Bumgardner Crossing Is Scene Of Crash; Failed
To See Train

H. B. Nelson and his wife, Frances, Athens, O., were killed almost instantly when their coupe was demolished by Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train No. 216 at the Bumgardner crossing three miles east of Cedarville at 11:15 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The middle-aged couple was driving east on the Columbus Pike and although a view of the track in both directions is almost unobstructed, it is believed Mr. Nelson, who was driving, failed to either hear the warning whistle or notice the approach of the train. The car had stopped before proceeding across the crossing.

The crash was heard by Edgar Little and Allen Gass, farmers living nearby the scene of the accident, but when they reached the wreckage, both bodies were badly mangled and one of Nelson's legs was severed.

The couple lived at 65 Maplewood St., Athens, and Nelson was a traveling salesman, according to the coroner.

The coupe was carried nearly 100 feet down the rails but the man and woman were thrown clear of the wreckage. Both bodies were badly mangled and one of Nelson's legs was severed.

The bodies were removed to the McMillan funeral parlors as Cedarville and a brother of Nelson in Athens, was notified.

The passenger train, which was bound for Columbus, stopped after the accident.

It was ascertained that Nelson was a member of the Masonic Lodge and his wife belonged to the Eastern Star.

RED LUCAS NOT SO HOT BUT REDS WIN

ATLANTA, Ga., April 2.—The Cincinnati Reds pulled one out of the fire here when they downed the Atlanta Crackers by a 9 to 7 score yesterday.

Red Lucas, ace of the Red Sox pitching staff, proved not so hot in his five-inning sojourn on the mound. The seven markers scored by the Crackers were made during that period.

Tony Cucinello, rookie, put the Reds back in the running in the sixth when he slammed out a three-bagger with the bases loaded. Another quartet of runs in the seventh caused the downfall of the Crackers.

Hushey Critz, making his first appearance of the season in the lineup, came through with two bingles, a pair of runs and two sparkling field plays.

RADIO IS ROTTEN SO SHE TAKES GAS

LONDON, April 2.—The finding of the Duchess of Leinster lying unconscious in the gas-filled kitchenette of a cramped flat they had rented together in Brighton, was preceded by a bitter quarrel over their new radio set, Stanley Williams, young unemployed chef told investigators today.

"She had tuned in a London station and it was rotten," said Williams. "I wanted to get Paris."

"That started the fuss, lasting several hours. Finally I took my things and left, telling her I was going home."

It's True — GASOLENE can GUM-UP YOUR VALVES

"What's the matter?" asked the motorist. "Sticky valves," answered the repair man. "What's the reason?" was the next question.

We'll tell you—gum in gasoline!

Cities Service experts were among the first to discover the harmful effects of excessive gum in gasoline—and to provide a remedy.

The remedy is Koolmotor Gasolene—a gas that is free from harmful gum. Extra care and extra refining—known as the Cities Service mini-gum process—have reduced the gum content in Koolmotor Gasolene to a harmless minimum.

This superior motor fuel is powerful and clean burning. It is eager to go—full of speed—provides mile after mile of smooth, knock-free performance. It keeps your valves clean, free moving—it guards against loss of compression and power.

Don't burden your motor with sticky, gummy, clogging gasolenes. Insist on Koolmotor Gasolene, the original high test, anti-knock green gas. Then your motor will be free to do its best.

Poems that Live

HER DWELLING-PLACE
A MID the fairest things that grow
My lady hath her dwelling-place;
Where runnels flow, and frail buds blow
As shy and pallid as her face.

The wild, bright creatures of the wood
About her fearless flit and spring;
To light her dusky solitude
Comes April's earliest offering.

The calm Night from her urn of rest
Pours downward an unbroken stream;
All day upon her mother's breast
My lady lieth in a dream.

Love could not chill her low, soft bed
With any sad memorial stone;
He put a red rose at her head—
A flame as fragrant as his own.

Farm Notes

LAYERS SUBJECT TO PROLAP-SUS AND PICKOUTS
Spring is attended with epidemics of pickouts in many laying flocks. Where a considerable number of pickouts occur it is generally due to vent picking, resulting from single or a few cases of prolapsus of the oviduct, which gives the birds a taste of flesh and blood. Prolapsus is most prevalent following heavy winter egg production which may cause a weakening or breaking down of the oviduct. Also pullets or hens beginning to lay in spring are subject to prolapsus owing to difficulty of laying the first few eggs, especially if the birds are fat.

Little can be done as to prevention of prolapsus, although a laxative ration appears to be beneficial and some poultry keepers claim epsom salts gives relief when prolapsus occurs. However, the main problem according to D. C. Kennard, Ohio Experiment Station, is to prevent and control vent picking which may follow and often causes by far the greatest loss. Plenty of attractive nests are required to avoid floor eggs. A hen laying on floor is very likely to be attacked by another, whereas proper nests offer safety. Upon the first indication of vent picking, the laying house should be darkened sufficiently to prevent further trouble. In case of serious outbreaks it may be necessary to keep the house darkened from one to four weeks, depending upon the seriousness of the epidemic and how long the vice has been established in the flock. Effective control of light may be accomplished by making the house quite dark and provide artificial light in the amount desired. Or outside light can be admitted only at feeding time. Then the birds will be too busy to get into mischief. Still another way is to keep the laying house slightly darkened all the time by admitting some light where the birds can eat and drink, but keeping most of the house dark enough to protect the birds against attack.

Another procedure suggested by Mr. Kennard is to tip the upper beaks of the guilty ones, or, if necessary, the whole flock. If the matter is taken in hand at the start by catching up the one or the very few guilty birds so as to tip their beaks, this may end the trouble.

Those not familiar with how to tip beaks for control of pickouts or cannibalism among chicks may secure a bulletin describing the method by writing the Station at Wooster.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

A NEEDED EXHORTATION—I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service.—Romans 12:1.

TORIES OF CANADA

The debate on the Canadian government's bill to abolish the practice of issuing customs clearances on liquor shipped to the United States revealed an unexpected lack of appreciation of the debt the Conservative party owes to this country. One opposition snipe called the measure "another grand saloon to Washington." Another believed that the prime minister had been "under great strain and stress to introduce this measure in the house." The prime minister, who promptly denied these insinuations, would have been better advised, from a purely partisan standpoint, to have allowed them to stand. They convict their authors of holding their own countrymen incapable of discerning the ethical weakness in officially sanctioning the violation of the laws of a neighboring country or realizing the undesirable repercussions this practice must inevitably have on their side of the line; as well as of ingratitude to the United States for the manifold blessings it has conferred on their party in the past.

What would the Canadian Tories do without Uncle Sam? Where would they get their slogans at election times? Against whom would they wave the flag they run up on such occasions? Against whose "greed" and "bullying" would they be able to appeal to the passions of the electorate? Who but Uncle Sam enabled them to shout in 1911 that they wanted no truck nor trade with the Yankees? What was it but the late Mr. Taft's careless remark about Canada's being economically a northern extension of the United States that defeated his own reciprocity pact and sent the Conservative party to Ottawa for a decade? Who was it but Uncle Sam that inspired plastering the dominion in 1921 with posters representing a gigantic American eagle swooping down upon a tiny Canadian beaver industriously chewing away at a stick of wood? What is it but the American tariff that provides the Conservative party with its strongest argument for increasing the Canadian tariff?

Without the United States the Conservatives would be deeper in the wilderness than they are today. Without it they would have no neighboring industrial giant to point to something for Canada to emulate—and no horrible example of the social consequences of wealth, against which to warn their countrymen, who flock to it like moths to a candle. Above all, if the United States were not what and where it is, they could not accuse Mr. Mackenzie King of spending too much time in Washington—an "argument" that always goes over big with a section of the electorate. The obvious disinclination of the Tories to admit the extent to which they are under obligation to this country raises a doubt as to whether they deserve the political strength they derive from it.

THE "NINTH" PLANET

The skepticism of some of the British astronomers regarding the discovery of the "ninth" planet, and the suggestion by them that the observers at Flagstaff may have been misled by a vagrant comet, need not be taken over-seriously for the moment. The announcement from the Lowell observatory came after months of study by competent and careful scientists, and the report should stand until and unless it is definitely proven erroneous.

Nevertheless, the remarks of the doubting Thomases in England serve to recall one mistaken announcement of a planetary "discovery," which was made back in 1859 when facilities for making observations were relatively primitive, and which was accepted for quite a while.

In the year mentioned, a French physician named Lescarbault, living at Orgeres, saw, or thought he saw, a black ball crossing the face of the sun, and for reasons which seemed to him good and sufficient, concluded that he had detected a planet rotating inside the orbit of Mercury. He called his "find" Vulcan, and later on sent a letter to the astronomer, Urbain J. J. Leverrier, who first figured out the probable position of Neptune, telling what he thought he had found. Leverrier was highly unimpressed and at first rather scornful, but later on, in a personal interview with Lescarbault, congratulated him upon having "added a new planet to the solar system."

The "discovery" was announced with the prestige of the Leverrier name behind it and was widely accepted as authentic. Even the distance of the body from the sun and its period of revolution around that star were estimated.

But, alas, from that day to this, Vulcan never has been seen, and modern astronomers incline to the conclusion that its "discoverer" was misled by a sun spot, and that if an intra-Mercurial globe exists, it is very small, probably not more than thirty miles in diameter, and consequently of no more consequence than one of the asteroids.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WERE NOT ALIKE

A hard-working expression, quite inaccurate, is this: Human nature is all alike. The inference is that people do not differ greatly. The fact is they differ remarkably. They differ so much that sometimes one is led to believe some humans belong to a different order in the animal kingdom. You cannot tell what your reaction to an impulse or a situation is going to be because you have observed the reaction of someone else to the same situation. There are people who love the sea and those who love the hill country. And there are those who love the flat country best of all. The writer wouldn't trade ten miles of winding road in a fairly level country for an ocean and a chain of mountains.

We all differ. Our problem is to make the best adjustment to life—for ourselves—of which we are capable. We are not called upon to live for anybody else or even to tell anybody else how to live it.

STUBBORN

Child training experts tell us that stubbornness in children reaches its peak at the age of two. Being short on language, about the only tool of expression the two-year-old has is the word "no." Stubbornness is one of those characteristics that run all the way through childhood to old age. It isn't so bad in children. It can be dealt with. It's an unfortunate trait in grown-ups. Note that it is really a child's failing. When you observe it in men and women you may conclude they are not entirely grown up.

STILL ROOM

A few days ago an aviator flying from the capital of Canada to the capital of New Hampshire made a landing near the border. He came down in an Indian reservation. Nobody spoke English. The place apparently had changed little and the people had changed little for the past 300 years. It is a comfort to know there are still quiet, unchanged, undisturbed places on the American continent.

How many times was Henry Clay a candidate for the presidency of the United States and why was he not elected? He was three times candidate for the presidency and each time was defeated because of sectional rivalry, which he alone, as a member of the cabinet or congress, was always able to quiet at a later time. Many prominent persons of his day regretted during the closing years of Clay's life that it had not been possible for the country to confer upon him the highest office within its gift, because they felt he was the greatest man of his time.

They have been appointed midshipmen to the Naval academy, but none has been graduated.

Bo-Broadway NEW YORK—It's springtime in New York. Dexter fellows hit town the other day. Dex is popularly supposed to be advance agent for the Ringling Brothers Barnum & Bailey Circus. As a matter of fact, he's Spring, hiding behind a pair of bushy black brows and a ringmaster's mustache. The show windows burst into bloom.

Sad-eyed Jrecks linger on sunny corners selling circus buns. Park Avenue doormen blossom forth in lavender-hued habiliments. Geraniums appear on the dusty sills of tenement casements. The calendar proclaims the advent of the vernal season. But none of it's true till Mr. Fellow sets foot across the threshold of the first newspaper shop and bending across the crowded shoulders of the city editor, whispers: "Heigh-ho . . . here we are again!"

New York prides itself on the fact that each year the circus lingers from its winter quarters in Connecticut, down across the Harlem River into Madison Square Garden for a few weeks before hitting the outdoor.

A premier in the Garden is no mere gesture to the Big Town's importance. The winter quarters in Bridgeport are not spacious enough for the necessary lumbering-up, so they come to New York and make a little dough on the side while shaking the kinks out.

For what have steel girders and stone walls to do with "the most refined, elegant, greatest, grandest and most magnificent show ever organized?"

It's only out, under the Big Top that The White Blur of Illusion comes into being. . . . Thus, New York for the try-out, and then the country-side for the real show.

I am not going to the circus this year. The last time I was "covering" it for a newspaper. I went "back stage" among the elephants and clowns and who should I see sitting there but old Fred Stelling.

He was seventy-five years old—and still a great clown. Once upon a time he had been a head-liner. His big stunt was a somersault over three elephants lined up side by side.

Then his ankles gave out and by all the rules of the game he should have slid down the greased chute to Oblivion.

But Fred wasn't licked. He thought his way out, and as I say, when I saw him a few years back he was still following the Summer with the circus train, out along the dusty highways, old, loveable, wrinkled and supremely happy.

WATCHFULWEIGHTING

FIGHT OVER TARIFF REVEALS THAT "OLD GUARD" IN SENATE NEVER CAN BE REGARDED DEAD

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The "old guard" in the U. S. senate not only never yields; it cannot safely be considered dead until mortification actually sets in.

Six or seven weeks ago virtually all experts agreed that the old guardmen could hardly survive the licking they had taken throughout the whole tariff fight, now in conference. Game to the last, the veterans themselves were about ready to admit their finish—but if they had to perish, they meant to do it gloriously with their boots on.

Now look at them! Besides being as alive as need be, they have won the tariff fight, in all its main essentials. What a lesson for the young! In such devotion to the heroic principle, "No surrender!" while a single vote remains to be traded for.

TO go back to genesis: The agrarians were yowling that the tariff which was such juicy beefsteak for manufacturing, was prussic acid to agriculture.

The farmers complained that they had to pay like sixty for everything they were compelled to buy, because protection had made monopolists out of the folk they were forced to buy from; but that they had to sell for what they could get, because farm products were not adequately protected.

It was principally to rescue agriculture from this predicament that President Hoover called last spring's extra session of congress.

THE manufacturers were willing: 1. To have the tariff stay just as it was, if they could do no better—inasmuch as they already were making mighty good money out of it, with the exception of a few sick industries. Or—

2. To meet agriculture's demand for increased protection, on condition that they (the manufacturers) were granted correspondingly more of it.

In other words, if agriculture remained at zero, the manufacturers were satisfied with 10 (or maybe an increase of 15) as their margin were advanced to 10, the manufacturers wanted to be advanced to 20 or 30.

The house of representatives, where all financial legislation must originate, started the ball rolling.

Being in complete control of the house, the manufacturers had things entirely their own way there. First they decided to keep the farmers at zero. Then they gave themselves a substantial boost for good measure, and sent the tariff bill up to the senate.

The senate was expected to acquiesce, but it failed to do so. Instead there was a mutiny. The senate Democrats were ag'n the tariff measure, which had been anticipated.

The G. O. P. progressives joined the Democrats. That had been anticipated also. What had not been anticipated was that a lot of only slightly progressive Republicans would flop over likewise. They did, however. That left the old guard with Salt creek without a paddle. The old guardmen were out-voted.

The coalition—the Democrats and the insurgent Republicans, have slid down the greased chute to Oblivion.

But Fred wasn't licked. He thought his way out, and as I say, when I saw him a few years back he was still following the Summer with the circus train, out along the dusty highways, old, loveable, wrinkled and supremely happy.

constituting the "coalition" we have heard so much about recently—proceeded to yank the tariff bill all to pieces. . . . THE manufacturers' tariffs were chopped down. The farmers' tariffs were boosted up. It began to look like quite a civilized tariff bill—from the standpoint of folk who have been hollering about the cost of living.

Of course it was recognized that the made-over bill would strike a snag when the senate sent it back, as rejiggered, to the house of representatives.

Still, it seemed certain that the representatives had been blocked in their scheme to hand over all the money in the country, on a silver platter, to the manufacturers. The coalition appeared sure of at least as good as a draw.

FOR awhile ordinary people were entitled to fear that the coalition would not hold together long, but it did; it held together wonderfully.

It held together so long that even such wary old coalitionists as Senators Norris, Caraway, Borah and Pat Harrison made up their minds it was unbreakable. The old guard must have thought 'so, too—but it never surrendered.

And then, one day, the old guard was rewarded for its constancy. The coalition busted.

THE coalition crashed on a vote to increase the sugar tariff, which the coalition leaders believed they had already checkmated. But the old guard succeeded in getting a second ballot on it, and the second time enough coalitionists flopped out of the coalition's ranks and in to the old guard's vote the increase.

Let us consider three specific votes, to explain this flopping. One of the sugar tariff increases' friends was Senator Broussard, Senator Broussard, as a Democrat, normally should be against high tariffs—for instance, on petroleum and lumber. However, he is from sugar-growing Louisiana, so he does favor a high sugar tariff, and voted for it. But why did Senators Thomas of Oklahoma and Dill of Washington, who also are low tariff Democrats, likewise vote for it?—because Thomas and Dill are not much, if any, interested in sugar—and it may be only a coincidence that Thomas needed a few votes like Broussard's to help him with a petroleum tariff, and that Dill needed a few on lumber.

NEVERTHELESS, there have been stories of considerable trading in past tariff fights. Obviously their tendency is to make high rates all around if there are enough of them.

Still, will not the farmer get a modicum of increased protection out of it? Undoubtedly. "But," as Congressman Edwin L. Davis of Tennessee, one of the house of representatives' tariff experts, expressed it to me months ago, early in the extra session, "for every nickel he does get, I'll bet you he pays a dollar."

Had a Dragon-Fly of his own size and age said such a rash thing, Peter's particular friend would have snapped his head off. But the youngster's boldness made the elder flyer chuckle. "Take my advice and try out your wings before you set off on a sail, young upstart. I wonder if you know whom you're talking? I am the whose fame as a flyer is known throughout the happy hunting grounds and you challenge me! Hm! It's time you learned a lesson. I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll race you to yonder tree and back after you have made a trial fly."

"Tee hee! You're thinking I'll win if you don't give me a handicap!" chuckled the youngster. "But I will fool you, and you'll see the trial trip will not tire me out at all. Here I go, watch me!" Spreading his silken banners to the breeze, the saucy young Dragon-Fly tried to make good his boast. But, alas and alack, pride went before his fall. He rose into the air only to drop back on the stalk again, and not once, but a number of times. At last, all out of breath, he lost his balance and tumbled to the ground, where he lay panting. The young Dragon-Fly was mad as hops at his own clumsiness and not a little bit frightened. He knew he had been rude and bold, and he was not quite sure but that his elder cousin would punish him, even if he did not go so far as to bite his boastful head off.

Peter's particular friend shrieked with glee at his young cousin's discomfort. "Hee, hee! Ha, ha! Going to out-fly me, were you, when the truth is you do not even know enough to manage your wings yet? It would serve you jolly well if I fixed things so you could never fly again. I have a good notion to prick holes in your sails as you lie there."

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

Body Odors

Worried: The perspiration and skin oil are bound to become offensive unless they are removed daily with warm water and soap, and the underwear and stockings changed frequently.

It occasionally happens, however, that even when these precautions are taken, the perspiration will have a disagreeable odor, especially under the arms and from the feet. This may be due to a germ called the bacillus fetidus, which ordinary soap and water doesn't seem to bother, and especial germicides have to be used to kill them off. Body odors may be in evidence in diseases of the body; and even in constipation with absorption of putrefactive material, for some of the noxious properties are excreted by the skin.

For an application for the feet, a solution of one ounce of liquid formalin to the quart of water, is very good; for perspiration under the arms, a 25 per cent solution of aluminum chloride. Salicylic acid 10 grains to one ounce of cold cream, is also good for under the arms. These are used by patting a little of the formula on the affected parts, first washing and drying well.

Naturally, I have to speak of the importance of the hygienic habits to keep in normal health: the right diet, exercises, fresh air, poise, etc.

Excessive perspiration is known as hyperidrosis, and this is normal in the summer. But it is also found in run-down conditions—especially where there is any degree of toxemia (this literally means poison in the blood) and in tuberculosis, rickets, etc. Androsis means the opposite condition—too little perspiration. This may be due directly to a functional disorder of the sweat glands, or indirectly to disorders of the nerves or the ductless glands of the body which influence the function of all the organs. The skin is abnormally dry, and unless it is frequently oiled, either with a glycerine solution (1-4 glycerine and 3-4 water), or with some ointment that agrees, it is apt to become very dry and scaly, and itch intolerably.

Did you ever hear of sweating blood? No one ever sweats blood, no matter how great a stress he is under; but there is a condition known as chromidrosis, or colored perspiration, which may have given rise to this saying. The perspiration is reddish, due to the taking of certain drugs, or to the action of certain bacteria on the skin.

Mrs. J.: Your symptoms certainly suggest acute appendicitis; and as the condition is having a flare-up, you should immediately put yourself in the hands of a competent physician.

Miss E.: So far as health is concerned, you run no more risk in marrying a man 26 years older than yourself than you do in marrying one your own age. Of course, you realize that when you are still youthful, he will be an old man, and your days will be spent in sitting by the fireside, possibly in nursing. Good, strapping healthy girls usually prefer to go to work rather than have some older man take care of them. Why not consider this? The perhaps a man who will be a most fitting mate to you, so far as years are concerned, might come into your life.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

WIFE WRITES OUTCOME OF "OTHER WOMAN" EXPERIENCE

Just yesterday I was wondering how women acted when their husbands became infatuated with other women, and thought a convention of deserted wives would be helpful. How does one heal the hurt and adjust themselves to the changed conditions, I wondered? Is it any use to try to win the husband back, and if so, how?

I just opened a letter from a woman who had that very experience, and here it is. It is both helpful and hopeful.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have been a married woman for 11 years, and my husband was always kind, loving and good. But somehow, three years ago, he got mixed up with another woman. I never dreamed of such a thing, so of course was the last one to know of it.

"When he saw where it would all lead to he quit her. But when I found it out, of course I was awfully hurt, but he explained it all to me, and as he had always been good, loving and kind to me, I forgave him.

"Since then he has tried in every way to prove to me that he loves me, so we now understand each other and are happy again, and I am thankful that I stuck by him.

"I wish all others who have the same trouble could come out and be as happy as we are. We never speak of it to each other.

"A HAPPY WIFE."

Thank you for writing. You were fortunate in that your husband realized where the affair was leading him and ended it himself. I wonder what you would have done if he had actually gone away with this woman, or if he had refused to give her up and asked you to divorce him.

SILENT LOVER: Don't try to forget the girl you have loved so long. Remember her and keep on loving her, but try to gradually change the nature of your love until you feel toward her as she has evidently felt toward you all these years, that she is an older sister.

Possibly you should have asked her for dates, and perhaps it is just as well that you didn't, for it might have put her in an embarrassing position, depending on her feeling for you. It is probable that, as you surmise, she never thought of you other than as a dear young friend.

Go out with other girls, and maybe some day you will meet a girl who will remind you of Jane, and whom you will find you can love. Your ideals will be high because you have loved this lovely girl so long and so well, but I hope it will not ruin your life. It need not, believe me. It should prove a blessing.

KATE: Don't pay any attention to your husband's teasing. Even if he told your girl friends, you could quietly tell them the facts. As to the story about your husband, it strikes me the girl who told you is a mischief maker. Pay no attention to her.

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Ideal exercise systems for women differ in one respect from those adopted commonly by men. Exercises for women should develop grace. To be anatomically correct, they should be done in curves thus developing a rhythmic plastic movement rather than bulky fore-shortened muscles. Exercises of past years have run the entire gamut from dancing, the Greek games, to militaristic daily dozen.

The latter have helped to spoil many a woman's natural beauty, for they develop sharpness of movement and bulging muscles rather than even rhythmic grace. One of the first places an inactive person begins to show signs of age is in the chest and abdominal region. Fat seems to have an absolute affinity for waist and hips. For at natural, easy carriage of the body, and to properly hold the important internal organs, not to mention the issue of appearance, these muscles should be strong and firm like elastic bands.

The following exercises are especially planned to strengthen and reduce waist, hips, and the whole abdominal region:

I. Lie flat on the back, with arms down at sides, neck and shoulder muscles relaxed.

2. Pull the right knee back to chest and fling left arm (relaxed) over the head.

3. Alternate knees and arms. The pull of the leg muscles should be strong, but the muscles of the arms and chest should remain relaxed throughout.

II. Lie on back with both knees bent and feet placed on the floor.

2. Lift hips so weight is on shoulders and feet.

3. Push the hips out to right, up, to left, then down, not touching body to floor, continue circle each direction five times.

4. Pull the abdominal muscles in at the lowest point of the circle, and release the muscles when the abdomen is raised highest.

III. 1. Sit back on heels with knees on floor and arms stretched out in front, with the hands on floor shoulder width apart.

2. Life body and move it forward to a stretched-out position on the floor, keeping hands and knees in same position.

3. Lift body without moving hands and knees back to first position.

4. Continue rocking back and forth, five times, then rest.

IV. 1. Stand, feet slightly apart. Lower the sitting down muscles as if about to sit, with knees slightly bent.

2. Move the hip muscles forward, then upward to straight position.

3. Now push hips back and down thus completing a circle of the pelvic girdle, forward, upward and back and downward.

4. The abdominal muscles contract as the hip muscles are lowered, and the abdominal muscles push out as the hips come forward. This exercise is very difficult when first attempted, but will give flexible hip movements, strong abdominal muscles, and strengthen lower back.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED

Joe Sekyra, Dayton heavyweight, and Roscoe Rosales, Indian fighter, have been matched for a 12-round decision bout at Memorial Hall Wednesday night, April 9. Joe lost to the Indian in the first round of a Buffalo, N. Y. fight last week, the Indian papers stating that while Joe's low punch was intentional, the Indian was giving him a real shelling when the foul occurred and Joe received a thirty-day suspension for his trouble.

Rosales enjoys the reputation of having whipped the only two fighters who have knocked out to their credit over Joe. Larry Johnson, colored sensation, slipped the kayo over on Joe in Madison Square Garden recently, but he in turn went down to defeat at the hands of Rosey in a Toledo, O. bout, the Redskin having Mr. Johnson on the floor nine times. Nick Newman, a heavyweight of note, who won over Joe on a technical kayo several years back at Columbus, was kayoed in two rounds by Rosales.

Tommy McGinty, Cleveland promoter, who handles the affairs of the Indian, jumped at the chance for a re-match with Sekyra, turning down a good offer to box Lou Scorz in Buffalo at Rosales' suggestion, as the Indian feels that Joe fouled him intentionally and wants to flatten Joe before his home town admirers.

Clouds surrounding the world's light-heavyweight wrestling championship will vanish Friday night at Music Hall Arena, Columbus, when Hugh Nichols, popular "Texan Terror," collides with the ultra-clever Joe Banaski, whose drive toward titlism during the past year has proven one of the sensations of wrestling. It will mark the final tilt in the National Boxing Association's calendar of contests to decide the first official world's titleholder in this division. A rich $5,250 purse is involved.

Wise followers of the mat sport and critics believe that Joe is destined to become the champion of the world. They base their belief on the fact that men who have proven tough game for Nichols have been decidedly easy for Banaski. Nevertheless, Nichols has yet to meet defeat since he entered the ranks of lightweights more than a year ago.

Wittenberg College's hopes for a successful football season this fall have received a body blow unless a real end shows up because Alex Kish, Bucyrus, star end of last season, who was expected to hold down a regular terminal berth, has not reported to Coach Bill Stobbs for spring training and it is considered doubtful if he will play during the 1930 grid campaign.

Kish received a severe shoulder injury during the early days of the 1929 season and it was necessary for him to undergo an operation to correct the trouble caused by this injury.

Did you know that when George Stallings was manager of the Braves he bought four pitchers for $2,500 each and all of them more than made good?

Believe it or not, as Ripley says, it is a fact. The four were Arthur Nehf, Jesse Barnes, Jack Scott and Hugh McMillan. Nehf, who has retired to enter the hotel business with William Wrix, Jr., as his home, pitched four shutouts for Boston in the fall of 1915, not entering the National until August. One win of this kind was against Brooklyn, another against Cincinnati and two were against Pittsburgh. Little Arthur is the only man credited with two World's Series 1 to 0 wins, conquering Walter Hoyt in 1921 and Sam Jones in 1923.

Gibney To Head Playground Association

FRED BALDNER RESIGNS; PAUL TURNBULL ELECTED TO VACANCY

Addition Of Two Teams Makes It Necessary To Combine Teams In One League; May Divide Season Into Two Parts

Resignation of Fred Baldner as president of the newly-organized Xenia Playground Association and as a member of the Softball Commission was accepted at a meeting of the board of directors of the organization Tuesday night.

Paul Turnbull was elected to fill the vacancy and will serve as vice-president of the association while Walker Gibney, recently elected vice-president, was elevated to the presidency. E. E. Boxwell is secretary-treasurer. The three officers compose the Softball Commission, which will have absolute jurisdiction over the playing of softball this summer.

Two new softball teams were added as institutional members of the association, making ten in all, as compared with eight teams in the field last year.

Because of the greater number of teams and the fact only one diamond is available it was suggested that the ten teams compete in only one league this summer.

To divide the teams into two leagues composed of five in each circuit would be unsatisfactory because of the odd number of entrants, it was pointed out.

If present plans are carried out the playing season will be divided into two parts, with the winner of the first half schedule meeting the winner of the second half for the city title. Of course, if the same team won each half championship there would be no championship series.

With ten teams participating in the softball sport, there will be no open days each week for playing off postponed games. It is probable that the problem presented by postponed games will be solved by playing off these contests at the conclusion of the first half of the season and again at the close of the second half.

It is possible that the schedule for the league for the second half will not be drawn up until all scheduled games in the first half are played.

The latest teams to join the association include a nine to be known as the Xenia Country Club, composed of caddies and ex-caddies of the golf club, and also a team being organized by Fred Graham.

Besides adopting a constitution for the association, the directors, by a close vote of 5 to 3, approved a ten-inch, outside seam ball for use in the league this year.

The approved ball, as far as the seam is concerned, is the same as the type used last year, the only difference being that it is two inches smaller in diameter and consequently should be harder to hit. This, it is expected, will tend to reduce the advantage of batters over pitchers.

Three votes were cast in favor of an inside seam ball, proponents of this type asserting that this is a much more lively ball. The prevailing sentiment, however, appeared to be that there is also gathered too much heavy hitting in the games as it is and that the outside seam ball is lively enough.

Inasmuch as membership in the association will be individual as well as institutional hereafter, plans for a proposed membership drive were also discussed at the meeting.

Under the newly-adopted plan, individuals, by a contribution of 50 cents or more will become members of the organization. Subscriptions, however, will be voluntary.

The hope being that a sufficient amount of money may be raised to defray expenses of putting the field into shape and also cover other minor costs that may arise.

It is pointed out, however, that no admission to the games will be charged and that it is not necessary to join the association in order to witness the softball games. Membership cards are now being printed.

My dear boy, a woman always knows those things about another woman. I could tell it when she came down to the beach party. Couldn't you see that she was different from the other girls? She didn't have the poise. And she took every compliment to heart; so and made such a play for attention from all the boys. You were so busy looking at her girlish figure you didn't notice it."

"If she's all those things, and has nothing but looks, I can't see what you're wasting your time on her, trying to be so charitable." Greg wanted to know, peevishly.

Carmel felt disconcerted. She tried to look hurt.

"Why, Greg? You're a regular old bear tonight. Don't you think I have a heart and ever feel sorry for another girl and want to help her along? I'm not snob. If I had to work I'd be darn grateful if another girl invited me places to meet nice people and tried to help me make a good marriage, are all that."

Carmel was floundering for words. The situation was becoming acutely uncomfortable. She could not pierce Greg's armor. He smoked and drank his cocktail and seemed almost unaware that she was sitting beside him, trying to look luring and hoping against hope that he would suddenly throw the cigarette and the cocktail aside and take her in his arms. He knew she could—for he had made love to her on various occasions. And she was not a bit flattered that he ignored her.

She moved over beside him and tilted his chin.

"Whassa matter, honey? What are you thinking about?"

"Elanda," he answered her shortly.

She put her arm around his neck in a friendly gesture as she might have another girl.

"What do you mean—Elanda? You're not interested in her, are you? Except as we all are."

He moved away from her and put his head into his hands.

"I'm crazy about her. I've never known a girl in my life I was so wild about."

Carmel was so surprised she could hardly speak a coherent sentence. When she did she said, affectionately:

"Why you poor old thing! No wonder you didn't like to have me disillusion you then. But you just wait a little while and see for yourself. She'll probably give you the air plenty for Lord Dusenberry."

Then, you'll see I'm right. We've been friends so long, Greg, dear, I'd hate to see you get all 'het' up over a girl who would play you for a good thing and then throw you over."

"Well, what have you got him hanging around here for then?"

"My dear, I was doing Elanda a favor. I told her he had called on me and she fell all over herself and begged me to introduce him to her. Far be it from me to hold out on any of my friends if they want to put on a little love match."

She watched him shrewdly. He slumped like a spoiled child and said nothing.

"Elanda," she went on then, measuring her words, "is an ambitious young lady. She doesn't know anybody worthwhile that can be a background for her—and of course, she is clever enough to try to make her own. You can't blame her. I don't suppose she has any money or people. Poor kid!"

"She doesn't need it with her looks," Greg smashed a cigarette on the ash stand. "Any man would lose his head over her. She's got everything she needs."

Carmel's eyes narrowed. She felt cold and her thin face took on a harder look. She realized she was getting angry and tried to control her voice and her manner.

"She is a very pretty girl. But of course every man wouldn't fall for her. That is ridiculous. Some men would see through her."

"What do you mean?" Greg looked up sharply.

"Oh, I don't mean any harm. Whoopee tried to look innocent. I just mean that she is clever. I'm paying her a compliment—from one woman to another. She is pretty. But she is a deep thinker and she isn't going to waste her time on anyone who can't do her some good in New York."

"Girls without money, who have to work, can't afford to waste time on men who can't help them in the same way. I suppose I'd be just the same if I didn't have money. As it is, I can love a man for himself."

She ended with a shrill little laugh that got on Greg's nerves.

"How do you know she hasn't money and people? We don't know anything about her."

Carmel reached over and patted his hand.

"My dear boy, a woman always knows those things about another woman. I could tell it when she came down to the beach party. Couldn't you see that she was different from the other girls? She didn't have the poise. And she took every compliment to heart; so and made such a play for attention from all the boys. You were so busy looking at her girlish figure you didn't notice it."

The Theater

A board of review of all motion picture material will be constituted and public officials and members of civic groups called in for consultation to enforce the new code of ethics for the industry which includes limitation on treatment of crime, sex and the use of liquor, Will H. Hays, movie czar, announces.

The new commandments for the screen have been ratified by a board of the major producing companies and congratulations on the new code were received from Thomas Edison and many others.

"The reviewing facilities are available to all producers," says Hays, "in order that such changes as may seem necessary to conform to the provisions of the code may be made before the negatives are sent to the laboratory after pictures are begun. The leading factors of the industry through standing committees will be called to arbitrate when there is any doubt about interpretation and thus the common judgment of men with a common purpose will be the deciding issue."

Provisions of the code include: Methods of crime shall not be presented in explicit detail; revenge in modern times shall not be justified as a motive; the use of liquor in American life shall be restricted to the actual requirements of characterization or plot; the sanctity of marriage and the home shall be upheld; scenes of passion shall not be introduced when not essential to the plot; no film or episode may throw ridicule on any religious faith; pointed profanity is forbidden.

The attempted suicide of the Duchess of Leinster, who was found near death from asphyxiation in a London hotel room, is a tragic anti-climax to a colorful stage career. As May Etheridge, musical comedy actress, she was playing a leading part in "Lady Caprice," a musical show at the Shaftesbury Theater in London a year before the war broke out, when society was startled by announcement of her engagement to Lord Edward Fitzgerald, now the Duke of Leinster. Over family objections they were married. In 1922, through the death of his brother, Lord Edward succeeded to the Duchy, which carries with

MAY DISSOLVE CAESARCREEK SCHOOLS

STATE EDUCATION DIRECTOR URGES DISTRICT BE DIVIDED

Wants Guarantee Of New School In Beaver Creek Twp.; Suggests Combining Jamestown And Silvercreek Districts

Recommendations by Dr. J. L. Clifton, state director of education, based on recent surveys made in an effort to solve school problems in Caesarcreek, Beaver Creek and Silvercreek Twp., and Jamestown school districts, will be considered by the Greene County Board of Education Friday.

Director Clifton has announced that because of inadequate buildings and equipment the first grade charter of Caesarcreek High School, revoked following the failure of a bond issue last fall, to take effect at the end of the present school year, will not be renewed.

The director has recommended to the county board that it make the following distribution of the Caesarcreek Twp. school district:

1. Most of that part of the district east of the Wilmington Pike, with the exception of some territory which should be transferred to Liberty Twp., Clinton County, should be transferred to that part of Jefferson Twp. school district, which embraces four schools with an enrollment of eighty-seven pupils. A petition for this transfer is already in the hands of the county board.

2. The remaining part of the district should be transferred to the Spring Valley school district, the part including three schools with an enrollment of fifty pupils.

3. At the time of this transfer, a small area from the southwest corner of the Jefferson Twp. school district should also go to Liberty Twp. in Clinton County.

Director Clifton suggests the present high school building should be retained as a meeting place for such community activities as the Grange and that in his judgment the solutions proposed by the state department will insure the best educational possibilities for children of Caesarcreek Twp., at a minimum cost to taxpayers.

Two petitions filed with the county board seeking transfer of Caesarcreek school territory to Jefferson Twp. school district will also be considered at the meeting Friday.

One petition, claiming to bear the signatures of from 90 to 95 per cent of the voters, seeks the transfer of territory around Paintersville to Jefferson Twp. for high school and grade purposes, while a second petition, claiming to bear 70 per cent of available signatures, would have the board authorize transfer of territory between Paintersville and a strip on the east side of the Wilmington Pike. This would leave New Hope, Needmore, Maple Corner, Meazier, Babbtown and the present school building still in the district.

Another petition being circulated in the township looks forward to consolidation of all one-room schools in the district and transportation of high school students to any other school they may desire to attend, probably Spring Valley, Xenia and Bowersville. Legality of the first two petitions would not be affected by this third petition. Because of the high percentage of signatures, it becomes almost mandatory on the part of the board to grant the petitions on file and any remonstrative petitions against the transfer filed within the next thirty days must contain signatures of fifty-one per cent of voters in the districts involved.

order that additions may be made easily.

The present Beaver Creek High School, erected in 1888, has an enrollment of 105 pupils and is operated at a cost of $10,000 a year, a per pupil cost of $105. At present the district has fourteen one-room schools at twelve different locations which enroll 416 pupils. Of these only three are considered in good repair. The district has a tax duplicate in excess of $5,000,000, which is increasing yearly.

A survey of school needs in Silvercreek and Jamestown school districts resulted in a recommendation that the county board immediately create a new school district consisting of Jamestown village and Silvercreek school district, combining them.

It is suggested that at the November, 1930 election this new district submit a bond issue of sufficient size to erect a high school building to accommodate from 200 to 250 pupils, grades seven to twelve.

The present Jamestown building, which has eight rooms, including two made from the assembly room, could be used to accommodate approximately 240 pupils in grades one to six, including the new district, the director said. The present building, although rather old, is in fairly good condition and should serve the community for several years, he declared.

Since the state department more than a year ago directed that immediate steps be taken to improve the high school facilities, action toward the carrying out of this program would insure the retention of the charter for this district, it is announced.

Director Clifton said the survey revealed that the present one-room schools in Silvercreek Twp. are old type buildings and poorly suited for a modern educational program. The present high school enrollment is 102.

Since Silvercreek Twp. is in reality a part of the Jamestown community and should therefore help pay for proper building and equipment for both their grade and high school pupils, the most economical way for Silvercreek to provide an educational program to meet present-day requirements is by uniting with Jamestown, Director Clifton claims. The other possibility would be to build an elementary building in the township for the seven one-room schools, but this would be more expensive for many reasons, he said.

Iso-Thermic Tubes

... the automatic self-starting device for fastest freezing of ice and desserts ...

FOR 16 years, Kelvinator Engineers have striven to make electric refrigeration more trouble-free, more automatic, more complete in the service it renders to users.

Iso-Thermic Tubes, for example, are found only in the new Kelvinators. Built around a special freezing tray, this new device automatically starts freezing operations when a tray of water or dessert is placed within. Ice cubes and frozen desserts are prepared in record time. There is nothing to watch or regulate.

But Kelvinator design carefully keeps this extreme cold in its right place. A separate temperature—scientifically correct for proper preservation of foods—is automatically maintained in the food compartments. Thus, food cannot be spoiled through freezing or too high a temperature.

With all their improvements in fully automatic operation and in far finer cabinet designs, the new Kelvinators are most moderately priced. See them today and learn how easily you may enjoy this modern refrigeration service now through Kelvinator's attractive ReDisCo monthly budget plan.

BAWLED BERTRAM the BOUNCER.

"My man," reproved the Duchess, "it is seldom that I speak directly to a menial, but those rasping, grinding tones were more fitting for peddling fish than announcing my coach-and-four."

"A thousand pardons, Milady," replied Bertram humbly, "but what am I to do?"

WHEN YOU BUY OLIVES!

No other item of food on the market offers wider diversity of flavor and quality or requires more careful selection. Because the average housekeeper is unfamiliar with the various grades of olives she should depend largely on her knowledge of the brand under which they are sold to guide her in her choice.
